A new spin on the classic "socially awkward" format. With 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 or 9 people sitting in front of a TV, you'll get to see one another naked. Unique among social games, everything you vote is used in the game. For example: - You don't just vote for the people to get kicked out. You also get to vote for them to stay. - The parties will sometimes ask for your feedback through surveys to find out how to make the game better, and for adding more options. - There are many prizes hidden somewhere on the island, and you might just find them. What's new in Beauty Agent:

of New Jersey "Get Out... of New Jersey" is a song by English rock band Oasis. It was released by Arista Records as the second single from their 2001 album Heathen Chemistry. The song charted at number fourteen on the UK Singles Chart, becoming the band's first single not to reach the top ten in the United Kingdom. Writing and recording The idea for the song came during a recording session in the Soho Hotel in London, following the frustrations of touring in the United States in 2000. At the recording session, guitarist Noel Gallagher began humming the tune. It soon turned into a fast paced song with surprising interplay between Noel's guitar, Gem Archer's rhythm guitar, Alan White's bass and Andy Bell's drums. The song was written with the main chord sequence being, "Dm, A7, D7, G". An E7 to Dm7 turnaround in the middle of the song took the song back down to the E major key, and it moves into the chorus after this, the only time this happens in the whole song. The entire song is played in a tempo around 120-120 BPM. Noel came up with the lyric upon hearing the chord progression: Ringo Starr (in a cameo appearance as General Stanley McCaffrey) talks about Oasis during the latter part of the song, asking "What's the matter", after which Gallagher segues into the "You ain't nothing but a hound dog" section: "You sound out of tune, you play with no lead, you got no lead; You're just a hound dog, you can't, you ain't nothing but". Music video The video for the song was directed by Nima Nourizadeh, continuing to explore the comical nature of the band at that point. Noel looks very pale and sickly in the clip, with Liam kicking him in the head over and over. The video was shot in London.
